CONTROLLED EMPLOYMENT RESOURCE - RETAIN WITH THE EMPLOYEE FILE UNDER THE OFFICE STANDARD.

01

Purpose and file rule

The employment file controls the employment record. It does not train the job.

GOVERNING PURPOSE

This register governs the employment file from application through separation: application, interview, hire decision, employment orientation, performance review, corrective action, separation, access removal, and file control.

WHAT THIS REGISTER CONTROLS

- Application and interview records used by the business.
- The documented hire decision and pre-shift employment requirements.
- Employment policies, company property, facility orientation, and issued system access.
- Performance reviews, corrective action, separation logistics, and access removal.
- File ownership, access, and retention routing.

WHAT IT DOES NOT CONTROL

- This register does not train operating procedures and does not replace the Standard Operating Procedures.
- This register does not authorize a role. Solo role authority lives only in the Employee Training Record.
- This register does not replace the Agreement, Pickup & Return, Fleet materials, Local Rules, or the Office Standard.
- This register is not an employment contract unless the business separately attaches an agreement reviewed for its use.
- This resource is not legal advice, HR advice, safety certification, or a substitute for qualified employment counsel.

FILE RULE

Employment decisions and employment records stay in the employee family. Customer rental files do not receive employment records. Training evidence and role authorization remain in the Training Record, even when this register references them.

02

Application

Collect job-related facts. Adapt the questions to the jurisdiction and the actual role.

APPLICATION RULE

Use only fields that are lawful and job-related for this jurisdiction and position. This register intentionally avoids medical questions and fixed jurisdiction language.

RETENTION RULE

Retention follows the Office Standard and current requirements applicable to the business. This register does not invent a fixed number of years. Access must be limited to people whose role authorizes them to handle confidential employment records.

CLOSING NOTICE

This is an experience-based employment control resource. Adapt it to the business and jurisdiction. Verify current employment, privacy, recordkeeping, and separation requirements with qualified counsel or other appropriate professionals. Signatures document a process; they do not create legal compliance by themselves.

The Employment Control Register records the employment file. The Employee Training Standard defines the training method. The Employee Training Record is the only record that grants or restricts solo operating authority.
